

June 29, 2014

I have now plotted the simple test case in one plot. In the upper panel, the red curve is the analytical result, while the blue curve is the COMSOL result (which is covered by the analytical result). The percent difference between the two solutions is plotted in the lower panel.

